The First Position.

Allegro.

The musical score is written in treble clef with a common time signature (C). It consists of 12 staves, each containing two measures of music. The tempo is marked 'Allegro.' The music is a continuous eighth-note exercise. The first measure of the first staff has a square box above the first eighth note. The second measure of the first staff has a sharp sign above the eighth note. The piece concludes with a double bar line and a final note on the twelfth staff.

The Second Position.

(formerly known as the "half shift.")

Perhaps the 2nd position is the most neglected by young students, it being found very awkward and difficult, on account of there being no actual guide for where the hand should rest, beyond saying, that it must be midway between the nut and body of the violin - It is certainly the least used of any position, but there are several passages where it is absolutely necessary to adopt it. For this reason the following exercises are written expressly for the practice of such phrases.

A very good way to find the position is:

testing your 3rd finger (D) with the open string.

Be careful to keep the hand away from the body of the violin, and the thumb always still, otherwise it will be found very difficult to play in tune.

The Third Position.

Formerly called the whole shift.

This position might very well be called by the young violinist the "Favorite" for unlike the 2nd position it is easy to find, and gives great scope for expression, especially the "gliding" from one position to the other. In this position we are first introduced to "harmonics," another beauty of violin playing.

The young student will do well to go steadily through all the following exercises so as to get a good foundation of the fingering.

On Extensions.

In the third position there are three kinds of extensions used viz: N^o 1. The extension, N^o 2. The harmonic extension, and N^o 3. The Back extension.

N^o 1. The "Extension" of the fourth finger on the E String for on the A String for  on the D String for  and on the G String for are used in passages thus

In this extension, it is advisable to keep the first finger firmly down, so as to avoid moving out of the position.

N^o 2. The "Harmonic Extension" or harmonic is made by letting the finger rest lightly on the string and is indicated by an O being placed above or below the note with the number for which finger it is to be played with, thus. —

The Harmonic is chiefly used in slow melodies, but is not advisable in quick passages unless at the end of a phrase or bar owing to it being necessary to raise all the fingers.

N^o 3. The "Back" Extension is very often used to avoid crossing the strings, the finger should not be extended back more than half a tone.

The musical score consists of 12 staves of music in 6/8 time, with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). The notation includes various rhythmic values such as eighth and sixteenth notes, often grouped with slurs. There are several dynamic markings, including accents (marked with a 'v') and hairpins. Handwritten annotations include numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4, and a star symbol (*) above a note in the first staff. The piece concludes with a double bar line and repeat dots.

The image displays ten staves of musical notation for guitar, each containing three measures. The notation is written in treble clef with a common time signature (C). The music consists of eighth-note patterns, often grouped in pairs or fours, and is connected by slurs. Fingering numbers (1-5) are placed above notes to indicate finger placement. Fret numbers (0-5) are placed below notes to indicate the fret position. The key signature varies across the staves, including natural, one flat (B-flat), and one sharp (F-sharp). Handwritten annotations are visible: '1st Pos' is written above the third staff, and the numbers '2' and '3' are written above the first and second notes of the first measure in the seventh staff.

Maestoso.

Handwritten musical score for guitar, featuring ten staves of music. The score includes various musical notations such as treble clefs, a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and a common time signature. The music features complex fingerings and articulations, with numerous handwritten annotations in black ink. These annotations include numbers (1-4) above notes, slurs, and other markings. A prominent handwritten word "RESTER" is written across the seventh staff. The piece concludes with a double bar line and a final chord. The page number "219" is printed at the bottom center.

This page contains ten staves of handwritten musical notation. The notation includes treble clefs, a key signature of one flat (B-flat), and a common time signature. The music features a variety of rhythmic patterns, including eighth and sixteenth notes, often grouped in beams. Many notes are beamed together in a way that suggests a specific fingering or articulation. Handwritten annotations are present throughout the score, including:

- Handwritten numbers (1, 2, 3, 4) above notes, likely indicating fingerings.
- Handwritten numbers (1, 2, 3, 4) above groups of notes, possibly indicating phrasing or breath marks.
- A handwritten "A-7" above a section of the eighth staff.
- Handwritten numbers (1, 2, 3) above notes in the final two staves.

The notation is dense and appears to be a study or a specific performance technique for a piece of music.
