Comment:	I wrote this for my Dad. It reminds me of him, and the way he used to tinker at the piano which he couldn't really play, improvising simple tunes based on the plainchant and canticles that for fifty years was such a part of his life singing in the cathedrals of Dublin. His strong, old (in my memory), gnarled hands would wring out idiomatic themes reminiscent of stately times, but always with an odd quirky twist within it. He was quite the victori... (more online)
