Comment:	This Romance, originally composed for french horn and orchestra by Camille Saint-Saëns in 1874, has characteristics that have come to be considered typically French: elegant line and proportions scored with the utmost clarity. It is a highly compact example of Saint-Saëns' approach to composition. Saint-Saëns composed the Romance in response to the need for original concert works for various neglected solo instruments, whose repertoires wer... (more online)
